

Financial Law Institute

Working Paper Series

WP 2002-09

August 2002

*Bouwen, herbouwen en verbouwen in
het Europese Vennootschapsrecht*

Eddy WYMEERSCH

The Financial Law Institute is a research and teaching unit within the Law School of Ghent University, Belgium. The research activities undertaken within the Institute focus on various issues of company and financial law, including private and public law of banking, capital markets regulation, company law and corporate governance.

The Working Paper Series, launched in 1999, aims at promoting the dissemination of the research output of different researchers within the Financial Law Institute to the broader academic community. The use and further distribution of the Working Papers is allowed for scientific purposes only. Working papers are published in their original language (Dutch, French, English or German) and are provisional.

For more information and a full list of available working papers, please consult the homepage of the Financial Law Institute at:

<http://www.law.rug.ac.be/fli>

*Bouwen, herbouwen en verbouwen in
het Europese Vennootschapsrecht*

Eddy WYMEERSCH

Abstract:

In this article we highlight the main paths of evolution in European company law and assess the need to rebuild some of the fundamentals on which European company law at present is built. The issue is put in the wider perspective of recent efforts to modernise the EU regulatory framework, inter alia with the Lamfalussy and Winter reports.

Finally, we examine whether recent developments in US company and securities law create a need to reassess some of the European company law rules as well.

Published in:

Nederlands Juristenblad, Kluwer, 2002, afl. 41, p.
2054-2060.

As this working paper has been published in the abovementioned journal, it is no longer available in working paper format. Readers are kindly referred to the published article.